City of Raleigh announces new radio show on WAUG

The city of Raleigh, through its Fair Housing Hearing Board and with the assistance of Legal Aid of North Carolina, will become a part of the WAUG line-up on The 411 w/John & Katrina radio talk show to educate citizens about the city of Raleigh's Fair Housing Ordinance and the rights and responsibilities the ordinance and other housing laws create. The show will air live on WAUG 750 AM every Monday from 8-8:30 a.m.

John Low and Katrina Dix will serve as show moderators while Octavia Rainey, chair of the Raleigh Fair Housing Hearing Board, will be the principal host and executive writer for the show. George Hausen, executive director of Legal Aid of North Carolina, will serve as co-writer and occasional co-host.

The inaugural show airs Feb. 8. Guests will include Raleigh Mayor Charles Meeker, Dr. Dianne Boardley Suber, president of Saint Augustine's College, and Brad Thompson, a founding Fair Housing Hearing Board member. Listeners are encouraged to call in with questions and comments to 919-546-9284.

WAUG, which covers the Triangle area, is a commercial radio station that offers a mix of talk, sports news and gospel programming. Listeners can also hear the programming online at www.Power750.com. WAUG is owned and operated by Saint Augustine's College.
